International Museum Day

2023

The Telecommunications Museum is celebrating World Telecommunication Day (17 May) and International Museum Day (18 May) through artistic and creative actions inside and outside the Museum, relaxation, pleasure, mental uplift, personal expression and co-creation.

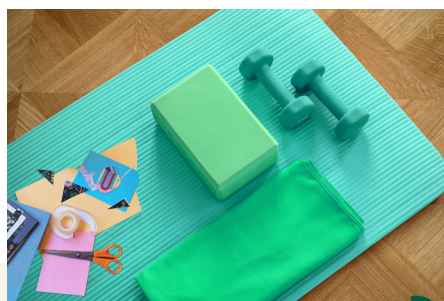

We're visiting the SOS Children's Villages and the Love Centre of Elefsina to construct ornamental plant supports – telephone operators and linemen – from recyclable materials and to decorate the garden! In the Museum's new classroom, we're making festive handicrafts, while at the interactive sandbox table, we're creating nature scenarios – lakes, streams and mountains – with the help of technology (augmented reality) and our imaginations.

In the courtyard of the Museum in Nea Kifisia, we're welcoming adolescents and adults so we can relax doing Pilates under the guidance of an expert trainer, and the OTE Group Mixed Choir of Athens will be at the Museum to take us on a journey into the world of musical creation.

Children will learn about trash art (art made from recyclable materials) and how they can reuse waste material from the recycle bin to create new decorative and usable handicrafts.

In the garden, under the guidance of visual artists, the children will construct their own telephone operator or lineman doll that can be used as a decorative support for plants.
